Sickness & Distress:

Yesterday (7/10) Doris Bitting called me to let me know how things are going with her. She had the surgery Thursday. The doctor said it would take 1 hr and 15 minutes. It took three hours. She stopped breathing when they removed the breathing tube so they had to put it back in. The breathing tube is now out and she is getting better. They might send her home today Monday July 11. She can't put weight on her leg for 6 weeks. She might have rehab for 6 weeks to get strength in her leg. She will be using a walker and just hop on the good leg. She believes this surgery will work. So we ask that you continue your prayers for her. She really believes in prayer. I am sure Get Well cards would be appreciated. Janet

Update 7/30: The doctors thought it better that Doris remain in the Wynscape Nursing & Rehabilitation Center, 2180 Manchester Rd, Wheaton, IL 60187 until she gains some strength and gives the grafted bone a chance to take. She will be there about 3 more weeks. She can only put minimal weight on her leg. She has had her staples removed but she is still wearing a large brace (24/7) to keep her leg straight during the healing process. (Yuck, sounds totally uncomfortable). Larry V

Christopher Hodapp: (7/13) Most of you know by now that I was diagnosed with stomach cancer back in March. Docs caught it quite by accident and very early. I've been through 9 weeks of chemotherapy, followed by a month long detox period (because, you know, it's poison). And now today—finally—they wheel me into surgery to remove all, or at least a major chunk, of my stomach (I won't know until I wake up). I'm thinking of the scene in Jaws when they cut the shark open and discover a license plate. "Aw, you don't need a stomach to live," sez my surgeon, with all of the chirpy good cheer of the guy who gets to keep his. I may have to wrestle him for it. I'll be laying there on the table, gutted like a largish fish, making gurgling sounds, while he's carving up my stomach and discussing lunch. Everybody discusses lunch at work. I hate this already. They say cancer is like a journey. Well, if they mean it's like that dismal Amtrak trip I took in 1976 when the air conditioning failed, the electrical system died, with no fresh water, no dining car, and stuck on a West Virginia siding for 12 hours waiting for a coal train derailment to get cleaned up, then perhaps 'they' are correct. Barring any surprises that Doctor 'You Don't need A Stomach' might come across this afternoon, I'll be in the hospital for a full week. I'll recover for 6 weeks, and then, long about the time I have a full beard and a head of hair again, I'll get zapped for another 9 more weeks of chemo. My only revenge is to become Beelzebub's satanic patient, which I have every intention of doing. The good news is that the prognosis is still positive. No one has taken Alice out in the hall and told her to take me skydiving and start hunting the safety deposit box key. Unfortunately, everything has taken much longer than I had hoped, which has given me much way too long a time to read really scary stuff on the Intertubz. My apologies to the many groups for whom I've had to call off travel plans. I've had to cancel more than two dozen events for the year, and I promise all of you, I'd much rather be with you than doing what I'm doing. Hopefully by October, I'll be back to my curmudgeonly self. Alice and I have been invited to speak in New York City on December 4th at the 92nd Street Y, and I have no intention of missing it. We both thank all of you for the literally hundreds of cards and letters, emails, phone calls and offers of help over the last few months as this has progressed. I can't adequately express how appreciative I am for all of the kind wishes and prayers from so many folks. Know that they have helped keep us happy and positive, and both of us owe so many of you a debt I cannot sufficiently repay. Forgive me if I don't answer my phone or email. I'll be on a table with a hose up my nose and strangers peering into my gastrointestinal tract, on really expensive drugs, administered by professional gas passers, while they discuss their lunch. Chris Hodapp.

Update: (7/14) I just heard from Alice. Chris came through 11 hours of surgery like a trouper. The surgery went well; the surgeon characterized it as "a raging success". They were able to build him a little stomach at the bottom of his esophagus, which was deemed much superior to "just yanking his stomach out" (as Alice put it). Chris is currently in post-op ICU and is on sleepy meds to keep him out of it for the next 24 hours while they still have all the tubes in. Brothers and friends, thanks for all your well-wishes and prayers. Keep a good thought for Chris and Alice while he starts the long road ahead to a full recovery. Nathan C. Brindle, P.M.

Update: (7/14): I just called Alice, and it turns out that Chris is awake and already telling jokes. He's doing really well, the doctor is pleased, and Alice is massively relieved. He'd be out of post-op ICU by now but the hospital is packed. (Insert obligatory Obama care joke here.) Hopefully he'll be moved to a different room by tomorrow. In the meantime he says he feels like a 1974 Chrysler Imperial with all of the smog control tubing hooked up, which should give you an idea about the state of his sense of humor. Nathan C. Brindle, P.M.

Update: (7/14): The hospital finally found a room and Chris is out of ICU. However, he is still on heavy pain meds and drifts in and out. Calls and visits are probably contraindicated at this time. Thanks for your consideration :-)

Nathan Brindle

Update: (7/19): OK, I just talked to Chris. They took one of the tubes out last night that had been causing him pain, but unfortunately that pain was masking the real pain from the incision in his back. So they have him on a new "weird" pain medication that he has to take so much of to get any relief that it ends up putting him to sleep. However, he says, no cancer and being able to keep part of his stomach makes it easier to bear. But he is in a lot of pain and I tried to keep the conversation short. I still haven't been up there and don't have his room number, but again, if anyone wants to send cards or letters, please send them to Chris c/o The Masonic Society, 1427 W 86th St Ste 248, Indianapolis, IN 46260-2103 and I will see to it that he gets them. Nathan Brindle Update: (7/20): Chris continues to improve...Alice says that they are taking an average of a tube a day out of him. He is apparently able to take a little bit of food by mouth and he is now on orally-administered painkillers. Alice says he looks much better but is still in quite a lot of pain, to the point where he is still doped up on meds a lot of the time. She agreed with what I have been saying all along: Please don't call or try to visit right now. He's doing quite well but he isn't really in any shape to carry on a long or even moderately-involved conversation. :) Alice said to say that he is aware that many of you have been wishing him well and that he appreciates it more than you know. Please keep those thoughts and prayers coming.

Update: (7/23): Chris says: "I'm not in any sort of mental capacity to string two intelligent words together myself, except for my apologies for lack of communication. The good news is that everything seems to be healing up the way it's supposed to. I still have a feeding tube sticking out of the middle of my stomach...it's not being used and I hope they'll take it out on Monday. Everything is progressing well if slowly."

Update: (7/25): I am officially home after post-surgery recovery, and am again surrounded by the warm embraces of my bride and my poodle. So far the news is excellent. Almost two weeks ago, as the mask went over my face and the lights went out, my surgeon had anticipated removing all of my stomach in an effort to eradicate the cancer that was growing right at the connection between my esophagus and stomach. But once he perforated me across 270° of my total circumference (apparently with a Craftsman jigsaw) and started stomping around in my abdomen (apparently in cleats), it seems my chemotherapy had done more to stop the cancer in its tracks than he'd first thought. The result was that he was able to leave me with a decent sized stomach (actually larger than what I had after lap band surgery last year!), and remove 3 inches or so from my esophagus. He took a fistful o' lymph nodes out, just for laughs, and the preliminary pathology report is that there was just one microscopic sliver of cancer in one lymph node, and that is the extent of the spread. To translate, that's the greatest news ever, and similar in tenor to the whizzing of a bullet sailing past my hairless head. Oddly, I still have a rubber hose with a small valve growing out of my belly that, shirtless, makes me appear to be a cherubic hot water heater, and clothed, a shoplifter. The best explanation I can get is that it's for "emergencies." I am apparently stuck with this odd accessory for the next two months. Otherwise, my collection of scars look like a human interactive map of Peru's Nazca lines, with tiny scrapes and cuts in enough random spots all over to convince me that someone overturned a drawer of silverware on me by accident. Recovery has been pockmarked with dazzling piles of narcotics and some truly startling hallucinations. At various times, I have been convinced I was in San Francisco, Seattle or San Diego, proving that drugs largely remain a West Coast fascination. And if it's all the same to everybody, I'd just as soon not have any more surgery again, like, ever. I still sleep more than I am awake, so I'm not being anti-social—just dancing the Oxycontin Meringue. But to give you some idea, this morning I felt just as fresh and prone to writhing in torment as I did the day after surgery, and I'm told to expect 5 to 6 more weeks of this before I feel like doing complex activities like changing from SyFy to the Weather Channel. On a pain scale of one to ten, with one being a baby unicorn gamboling in a field of buttercups, I am closer to the ten end, which is the equivalent of being hurled into the Stygian Pit at the end of a largish toasting fork, while being serenaded by the entire annoying cast of Glee with a selection of Neil Sedaka tunes. I'm at least slowly regaining my ability to form compound sentences. And, I am sufficiently emboldened by each day's progress to think that by the month's end I can tell friend, brother and attorney Michael Halleran that there's no need to sue anyone, after all. Again, Alice and I are both hugely appreciative of everyone's cards, letters, emails, prayers and good wishes, and I thank all of you. Please bear with me for the next few weeks if I seem unresponsive to messages or fail to answer the phone. I'm probably on a magic carpet ride to Seattle.

Robert C. Reicher, a 50-year member and long time recorder of Michigan City York Rite will be going in for colon cancer surgery on August 8th. Please keep Bob and Barbara in your prayers.

Steve Arlington's Father was diagnosed with B-cell type blood cancer, and they found a tumor on his pituitary gland. He spent two months at the Rush Medical Center in Chicago and recently has been moved to the Lifecare Center in Valparaiso for physical therapy. He is 71, and the therapy is needed to build his strength while taking the chemotherapy. Steve and his family would truly appreciate your prayers.

Charles Johnson: While attending the conferral of the Order of the Purple Cross in Nashville, TN Charles Johnson, GPE, Deputy Grand Governor of the York Rite Sovereign College for Indiana passed out. He was taken to a local hospital by ambulance and check out. In conversation with Jim Hodge, Grand Governor, this morning I learned that Charles was admitted and spent the night in the hospital. He was released this morning and is doing much better. He will be returning home today accompanied part way by Jim Hodge. His problem was attributed to dehydration, not eating regularly, etc. I understand Charles is Diabetic. Please keep Charles and Karen in your prayers. Fraternally, Larry Gray

K. Edwin Applegate, KCT, PGC, PDC

Date Of Birth: July 21, 1923
Date Of Death: July 9, 2011
Service Date: 11:00 A.M. Friday
July 15, 2011
First United Methodist Church

For more than 65 years, K. Edwin Applegate was a committed leader and public servant to the State of Indiana and to his country.

Upon recovering from wounds he sustained in France during World War II, Applegate earned an undergraduate degree in business management at Indiana University in 1946 and a law degree from the Maurer School of Law in 1948. He opened his first law firm in Bloomington in 1949 and retired from Applegate, McDonald and Associates in 2011.

Applegate had a distinguished record of public service, serving from 1951-1958 as U.S. Commissioner, Southern District of Indiana; from 1958-1965 as Deputy Prosecutor for Monroe County and Municipal Judge for Bloomington; and in 1965 as a representative in the Indiana General Assembly, where he was primary author of the bill that established Ivy Tech Bloomington's first Community College. In 1967, President Lyndon B. Johnson nominated him as U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Indiana, a position he held until 1970.

Applegate was an active civic leader, including serving as President of the IU Varsity Club and on numerous boards of directors in Bloomington and Monroe County. He was also active in Knights Templar and Freemasons. He was active in the local lodge number 22 for over three decades, also serving in 1973 as the Sovereign Grand Inspector General, Honorary 33rd Degree, Northern Masonic Jurisdiction, and in 1976 as the Department Commander for the East Central Department of the Grand Encampment of the Knights Templar of the United States. He received many awards throughout his decades of service, including being selected by Governor Evan Bayh in 1992 for the Outstanding Government and Civic Service Award and, in 1999, for the Indiana Bar Foundation's Distinguished Service Award for fifty years of service. In 2011 Applegate was inducted into the Academy of Law Alumni Fellows from the Maurer School of Law at Indiana University. Induction into the Academy represents the highest honor the School bestows on alumni. Fellows have distinguished themselves in their chosen career fields and have continued to enhance the national reputation of the Indiana University Maurer School of Law through their personal achievements and dedication to the highest standards of their profession.

In 1944, Applegate married his grade-school sweetheart and love of his life, Betty Applegate (Dilts) of Winamac Indiana, a union that celebrated its sixty-seventh year in 2011 and resulted in four children, Eric, Ray, Bob and Beth Applegate.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by his sister Virginia Baumgartner, son Raymond Applegate (Rachel) of TX; son Bob Applegate (Vicki) of WI and daughter Beth Applegate (Trish Kerle); of Bloomington, IN. He also is survived by six grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Ed was preceded in death by his mother Gladys Applegate; father Karl Applegate; and son Eric Applegate.

Visitation took place at Allen Funeral Home (4155 S. Old State Road 37, Bloomington, IN 47401) from 4 PM to 7 PM on Thursday, July 14, 2011.

Memorial Services were held at the First Methodist Church on the corner of 4th Street and Washington Street, Bloomington, IN on Friday, July 15 at 11:00 AM. His body will be cremated and his remains will be placed in the First Methodist Church, Columbarium where his eldest son Eric also rests in peace. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that contributions be made in memory of Ed and Eric Applegate to the Kinsey Institute for Research in Sex, Gender, and Reproduction, Morrison 313 / 1165 E. 3rd Street, Indiana University, Bloomington, IN 47405. Condolences may be directed to Mrs. Betty Applegate, 509 S. Swain Ave., Bloomington, IN 47401.

Think about it:

Instructions for Life in the new millennium from the Dalai Lama:

1. Take into account that great love and great achievements involve great risk.
2. When you lose, don't lose the lesson.
3. Follow the three R's: Respect for self, respect for others and responsibility for all your actions.
4. Remember that not getting what you want is sometimes a wonderful stroke of luck.
5. Learn the rules so you know how to break them properly.
6. Don't let a little dispute injure a great friendship.
7. When you realize you've made a mistake, take immediate steps to correct it.
8. Spend some time alone every day.
9. Open your arms to change, but don't let go of your values.
10. Remember that silence is sometimes the best answer.
11. Live a good, honorable life. Then when you get older and think back, you'll be able to enjoy it a second time.
12. A loving atmosphere in your home is the foundation for your life.
13. In disagreements with loved ones, deal only with the current situation. Don't bring up the past.
14. Share your knowledge. It's a way to achieve immortality.
15. Be gentle with the earth.
16. Once a year, go some place you've never been before.
17. Remember that the best relationship is one in which your love for each other exceeds your need for each other.
18. Judge your success by what you had to give up in order to get it.
19. Approach love and cooking with reckless abandon.

Washington Masonic Birthday Processional
To the Indiana State Capitol Building
Thursday, August 4th, 2011 at 11 AM.

All Freemasons are invited to participate.

Most Worshipful Grand Master Gregory C. Walbridge invites you to participate with him and the Officers of the Grand Lodge to celebrate the Masonic Birthday of our Founding Father and most famous Mason, George Washington. The ceremony will take place at the Masonic statue of George Washington that is located on the South lawn of the Indiana State Capital Building on Thursday August 4, 2011 at 11 AM. We will assemble at 10 AM in the parking lot of the Indianapolis Valley of the Scottish-Rite located at 650 N. Meridian Street, Indianapolis, IN 46204. We will step off at 11 AM sharp in processional to the Statehouse South lawn.

Parade/Procession Route

The parade route/processional will take us from Freemasons Hall at North and Illinois Street and travel West on North Street to Capital Ave, South on Capital Ave. to West Washington Street where we will use the sidewalk to approach the Statue of George Washington on the South lawn. Once at the Statue, a ceremony will be performed honoring George Washington's Masonic birthday, his contributions to Freemasonry and to the United States.

Appropriate Dress and Regalia

Grand Lodge Officers will wear Morning Suit with full regalia. Masters and Lodge Officers wear sport coat and tie (preferred) or lodge polo shirt with pants together with aprons and jewels. All other Freemasons including EA's and FC's same as Lodge Officers above with white apron worn in proper form. Appendant Bodies full regalia. White gloves optional. No shorts please.

Ladies and Guests

Ladies and guests our encouraged to meet the processional at the George Washington Masonic Statue on the South Lawn of the State Capital Building.

"George Washington as Master Mason" was sculpted initially from a wax mold at the American Sculptor Donald De Lue's studio in Leonard, New Jersey, and copyrighted in 1959. This sculpture was re-cast in 1986 and dedicated May 19, 1987 by the Grand Master of Freemasons of Indiana, J.C. Paxton of Warsaw, Indiana. The total cost of the gift was $100,000. Lieutenant Governor John Mutz accepted the statue on behalf of the state. The statue is located on the South lawn, West Washington Street side of the State Capital Building.
